

ITALY BROADCASTS INVASION WARNING

Meandering Along the Main Stem By WASH FAYETTE

Harold Layman, executive in this district for the Boy Scout organization, tells me that if the people of the city will cooperate this week in helping the Boy Scouts collect soft drink bottles they will be doing the Scouts a good turn in helping many of them to finance their expenses for their annual Scouts' camping trip.

He says the boys in uniform will call at all homes for empty soft drink bottles. Arrangements have been made for them to return these to the bottlers for which they will be paid at the rate of two cents per bottle. A lot of people have quite a number of such empty bottles about their homes, which they never returned, and will have an opportunity to get rid of them. At the same time the Boy Scouts will be benefited. Here's a chance to do that "good deed" for the Scouts in return for the daily "good deed" which is a part of each Scout's slogan and code.

At last we can look at the old Fayette County Court House clock and take the time at its face value. After weeks of confusion caused by the two kinds of time in Ohio, this county and city are again on the time that we changed away from in the first place, (very complicated isn't it.)

While Washington C. H. was still on the two kinds of times, Nick Vrettos of the Goody Shoppe was heard to say, "I'd look at my clock it would say ten, I'd look at the town clock it would say nine, what am I going to do?"

It is said that the whole country may go on slow time next fall, but until then maybe we can live a normal life. Maybe time change will help those poor souls who before were always wondering what time it was, and which.

Washington C. H. must be a right nice place after all, not that there ever was any doubt about it in my mind, but, naturally, I'm a bit prejudiced. . . here's proof from a casual caller:

It's been six days now since four soldiers blew in here from their camp in Texas. They had been given 15-day furloughs and were on their way to their homes in Pittsburgh. They met some friendly folks here and stayed over a day. . . then another and another. . . it begins to look like they would never get home before time comes for them to start back to camp.

Now there's the story that has come to me from several different sources. . . I can't vouch for the tale but I can vouch for the integrity of the tellers.

Of course, assuming that the yarn is unadorned with hometown bias, that all makes us very proud. . . it's nice to know that the boys in uniform are shown such hospitality. . . but I can't help feeling that the families of the boys will be very disappointed.

DRAFT OF FATHERS TO BE POSTPONED

Occupational Deferment To Be Reduced

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—A possibility of the drafting of fathers may be delayed until around October 1 was indicated by selective service officials today as they moved to speed the induction of 18-25 year old childless men now deferred on occupational grounds.

This effect to hold up the fathers' draft well beyond August 1, was disclosed in instructions on the filing by employers of schedules covering occupational deferments.

Another move toward deferring the father draft was seen in testimony before a House committee that the calling of family heads might be set back some weeks by the lowering of navy physical requirements enabling induction of many men previously rejected.

Administration Gets Setback As Senate Passes Bill to Confirm Appointees

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—The battle of the food price front rolled back to the White House today with the new congressional demands for appointment of a one-man boss over the war-time bread basket.

As labor and farm leaders squared off for another skirmish before the Senate Banking Committee, Chairman Fulmer (D., S. C.) led a bi-partisan delegation to a White House conference with the aim of convincing President Roosevelt something should be done at once to consolidate the food authority which Fulmer said is "scattered all over the landscape."

A delegation of five senators and four House members presented a similar proposal yesterday, but ran up against the opposition of war mobilization director, James F. Byrnes. Nevertheless Fulmer said he would nominate food administrator, Chester Davis as their candidate for the "czar" role.

Gen. Stilwell Back from U. S. Confab, Cites Opening Of Mediterranean

CHUNGKING, June 15—(AP)—Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell returned from Allied strategy conferences in Washington today and said "I feel that we will have a hell of a hard job ahead" in crushing Japan, but declared that the United Nations were thoroughly determined to do the job as soon as possible.

During the Washington conferences, Stilwell told correspondents, "China was thoroughly considered and her needs gone into at length."

There was, he said, a constant interchange of information between Allied leaders in China and those in charge of the southwest Pacific operations on the common task of defeating Japan. "We have a savage enemy and there's plenty of him" Stilwell emphasized. "There'll be a lot of hard fighting but we are thoroughly determined to get after him."

Asked if more supplies were coming to the Orient, Stilwell replied, "The clearing of the Mediterranean will ease up the shipping situation considerably." It may now be disclosed that Maj. Gen. Cities Evacuated In West Germany As Raids Increase BERN, Switzerland, June 15—(AP)—German newspapers received here said a mass evacuation of cities in western Germany was under way as the result of 180 heavy raids by Allied planes and 600 air alarms.

The Nazi press is engaged in a campaign to impel rural residents to open their homes to refugees.

Much-bombed Duesseldorf, target of a recent 2,000-ton RAF raid, is one of the chief cities being evacuated, the German papers said. Communiques from Berlin have reported very heavy losses there.

Not only the bombed-out families but those yet untouched by the explosives are being moved out, Das Reich said. Men are left behind to work.

Persons in northern Westphalia (the Ruhr region) will go to Bavaria. Those from Berlin will go to Brandenburg, East Prussia and Pomerania. Those with relatives in other districts may have permission to join them.

WAR PLANT WRECKER ACQUITTED -- INSANE

Production Handicapped for Seven Weeks

HACKENSACK, N. J., June 15—(AP)—Donald B. Converse of Brooklyn, N. Y., was acquitted yesterday of a malicious mischief charge in the destruction of equipment valued at $29,000 at the Bendix Aviation Corp's Teterboro plant in April, 1941, when he was employed there as a parts inspector.

Converse was declared insane during the first trial in May, 1941, and committed to the Greystone Park State Hospital. He was discharged as cured May 13.

Prosecutor John J. Breslin, Jr., said Converse smashed the equipment with a 10-pound metal casting, tying up work in a part of the plant for seven weeks.

Illegal Corn Market Revealed In Midwest

CHICAGO, June 15—(AP)—Truck drivers, roaming the midwest in an unprecedented hunt for corn, are buying the yellow grain at higher than ceiling prices and selling it profitably to farmers who need it to feed livestock, members of leading grain firms said today.

That is one reason why not as much corn as is needed is coming into marketing terminals, threatening a complete shut-down in the corn refining industry within the next 30 days.

The existence of an illegal market in corn, grain men said, is common knowledge among the trade. The Baldwin Elevator Company of Decatur, Ill., commenting on the situation, said:

"There probably never was such a storm of truckers roaming over the Illinois highways staging a veritable corn 'blitz' on country elevators, as in recent weeks. Now they are contacting the growers direct. With truckers being the privileged characters as to prices they can pay for corn, it does not look as though there will be a normal corn movement through regular channels even after producers have caught up with their work."

Reports to grain firms indicated similar situations in other corn belt states.

It is practically impossible to enforce corn ceilings at every fence post in the American grain belt, grain men said. The transactions are not officially recorded, as they are in marketing terminals, and the only persons who know about them are the buyer and seller.

JAPS WARNED OF HARD TIMES

Complaints of 'Enough War' Given Antidote in Radio Broadcast to People

NEW YORK, June 15—(AP)—The Japanese Diet organized for a three-day session today to rubberstamp legislation decided upon by Premier Hiedki Tojo and the Imperial Rule Assistance Association, after the people had been prepared for increased hardships by an intensive propaganda campaign.

Tokyo broadcasts recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said that Tojo would appear before the Diet tomorrow and that the legislators would not be permitted to ask questions.

Among the broadcasts preparing the people was one last week by Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, who often speaks for the Premier.

"Not only in our nation, but throughout the world, I think many are complaining now that the war is too long prolonged and our living conditions are exposed to menace, inconvenience and difficulties," he said. "Some are saying we have had enough of war and that the war should be stopped by this time. . . if we keep on with the conditions we have at present, it will be wonderful. But it is too good to be true."

U. S. Losses Replaced 'Many Times Over,' Knox Says In Giving Box Score

(By The Associated Press)
Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today far-ranging U. S. Flying Fortresses and Liberators dropped nearly 60,000 pounds of explosives on the Japanese keystone base at Rabaul, New Britain, and blasted a 4,000-ton enemy transport in Humboldt Bay, Dutch New Guinea.

Two direct hits with 500-pound bombs left the ship in flames. Other Allied warplanes sank or damaged 11 Japanese barges along the New Guinea coast, and also bombed the enemy strongholds at Kaimama, Babo and Guam island.

Jap Ships Suffer
Steadily whittling at Japan's vital and thin-stretched supply lines, American submarines were officially credited with sinking 12 more Japanese ships, including a destroyer, and probably sinking or damaging four others in Pacific waters recently.

In disclosing these triumphs, the Navy told how an American submarine fought it out with a Japanese undersea raider on the surface and "probably destroyed it" in a battle of decks guns.

Since Pearl Harbor, the Navy's list of Japanese ships sunk or damaged by submarine attack alone now totals 256, some of them destroyed within sight of the Japanese mainland.

On the Burma front, American and British planes continued their unrelenting attack on Japanese occupation forces, bombing the big enemy base at Akyab on the Bay of Bengal coast, machine-gunning Japanese troops, and blasting railways.

Losses Replaced
Secretary of the Navy Knox reported today that the eight American submarines reported lost so far in the war have been replaced "many times over."

The secretary's disclosure at a press conference followed Navy announcements yesterday United States under-sea rovers have sunk 12 more Japanese ships and damaged five for a total to date of 256 enemy vessels destroyed or damaged.

GERMANY SMASHED AGAIN

Reds Crush Tank-led Nazi Drive as Big Guns Boom At Leningrad and Rostov

By ROGER GREENE

(By The Associated Press)
A Rome radio commentator, in a broadcast recorded in London today, told Italians to stand by for an Allied invasion.

"Our men are ready at their guns, our planes are ready and our sailors are on the watch" for the "decisive phase approaching," he said. "Every Italian is ready to fight and until final victory is achieved."

London newspapers today quoted the Rome radio as saying that Allied warships and transports are massing in the Sicilian Strait following Allied occupation of the tiny island of Lampedusa, the last of four islands in the channel to be wrested from Italian control.

A Reuters dispatch from North Africa reported the capture of Lampedusa yesterday, saying it fell on Sunday. The island's inhabitants—a few lighthouse keepers—were reported to have fled.

Nazi Version

The German news agency, DNB, in a Berlin broadcast said today that Axis air attacks were continuing against the Allies' potential invasion fleet in the Sicilian Strait.

German bombers damaged a landing craft and six medium transports off Pantelleria and in the harbor, DNB said, and also reported that heavy bombers attacked Bone on the Algerian coast last night.

Axis planes have engaged Allied convoys in "a battle which has now lasted for tree days and has not lost any of its violence," the London Express quoted the Rome radio as saying. The newspaper said the battle was reported to be in progress in the triangular area between Malta, Bizerte and the Sicilian coast.

Allied Force Admitted

The Daily Herald quoted a German broadcast as saying that the Allies had massed at Bizerte "a large concentration of means of disembarkation" which were being hammered by German planes. At least 20 landing barges were sunk during a raid on the harbor, the broadcast reported.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Axis Now Feeling Impact Of Allied Plane Production In War On Land and Sea

(While DeWitt MacKenzie is on vacation, this daily column is being written by Max Hill, former chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Tokyo.)

By MAX HILL

The Axis finally is feeling the full impact of American's tremendous plane production, both on land and at sea, after months of delays which seem inherent in a democracy.

And it must come as quite a shock to the Hitler-Mussolini-Tojo combine that the United Nations now have awakened to the credo expressed so aptly by a Japanese when he was criticized for the tactics of the Rising Sun army in China.

The Japanese said tartly: "Nobody ever has discovered a polite way to kill a man."

Our air power virtually unaided brought about the surrender of the three Italian islands in the Mediterranean—Pantelleria, Lampedusa and Linosa—but most qualified observers are convinced this will not be the case with Germany and Italy proper.

There is another phase which enters seriously into the question of mass bombing of the European continent. We lost 26 Fortresses Sunday, and the British lost 24 bombers Saturday. Until a more specific announcement of damage done is released it cannot be said accurately whether the raids were worth the cost of almost 500 skilled and patiently trained men and millions of dollars worth of flying equipment.

This heavy loss might indicate, also, that the Germans have found a way to strengthen their defenses.

A less publicized but just as important phase in our air power is the work being done by patrols over the Atlantic. The danger spot in the mid Atlantic is now far better patrolled, both in the air and on the sea, than it was a few months ago.

His statement added: "Although it was originally predicted that politics would play a minor role at the governor's conference, it now appears that numerous smoke-filled-room confabs will be held in downtown hotels here June 20-23."

Ferguson said the reception would be held in the Neil House and that Ohio's Democratic leaders and county chairmen would attend.

"Who knows? We might pick up a new vice presidential candidate that day!" Ferguson's statement asserted.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed a smartly attired officer of the Ohio State Guard would serve as aide to each visiting governor and a civilian hostess is to look after the comforts of each gubernatorial delegation.

Adj. Gen. Donald F. Panoos today assigned officers, ranging in rank from second lieutenant to lieutenant colonel, to the guest notables.

The hostesses—most of them from Columbus—will attend the governors' ladies.

Next Tuesday the executives will visit a "starred E" plant at Newark, the Owens Corning Fiberglass Corp. factory.

SHARING PHONE VERY IMPORTANT DURING THE WAR

'Long Winded' Conversations 'Out' for Duration of The War

People who normally engaged in "long winded" conversations over the telephone are reminded that the telephone has gone to war, just as have rubber, gasoline and nylon hose.

The available telephone service has to be shared, because the factories which make new telephone equipment are now making fighting materials. And sharing means that a lot of people who want private line service have to take party lines for the duration.

They are sharing their telephone service just as they are sharing their automobiles.

This means that whether you have a private line or a party line they can help by making only necessary calls these days and by keeping all calls brief. And anyone on a party line, can let the Golden Rule be their guide in order that everybody entitled to use the line may have a fair share of it.

Don't let the "other woman" tie you up in half-hour "visits" is the request made. Discourage the children from carrying on lengthy conversations, or doing their homework over the telephone with schoolmates. "Even when doing something as simple as calling the store, have a list ready so that you don't tie up the lines while you figure what you want," phone officials urge.

"And when you hear a click, indicating that another party on the line wants to make a call, bring the conversation to an end as quickly as possible, just as you would want the other party to do if you had to make a call," is the request.

Lots of things have to be shared in these war days and the telephone is one of them.

As soon as the war is over and it is possible to obtain equipment, the Washington C. H. telephone system is to be rebuilt without delay, and it will be better able to handle increased demands.

Long Distance, Too

In line with the effort to keep the long distance telephone lines clear for war calls and to keep normal long distance traffic running as smoothly as possible, The Ohio Bell Telephone Company and all other Bell System companies are asking the public to co-operate by limiting conversations over heavily loaded lines to five minutes.

The objective is to speed up telephone traffic over congested routes during hours when the load is heaviest and calls are subject to delay, according to Fred Rost, Ohio Bell commercial manager. At such times of peak demand the operator will say at the start of conversation, "Please limit your call to five minutes—others are waiting." This request, however, will not be made by the operator unless congested conditions prevail on the lines between here and the out-of-town point called at the time the call is made.

"A subscriber may make two calls between here and Chicago within a period of an hour and yet hear the request to limit his conversation to five minutes only on the first call," Rost said. "That would be because at the time of the first call, the lines were all in use, with a waiting list. He might make a second call to the same point an hour later and not hear any request to limit his conversation. That would be because the congestion had cleared up since he made the first call.

"Co-operation of our subscribers in making their conversations brief will be a great help in relieving congestions so that calls connected with the war effort can go through without delay."

Tokyo, with 7,000,000 population, is nearly as large as New York City.

Music Sustains Soldiers' Morale

From Attics and Basements Old Phonographs and Pianos, Battered Saxes and Drums Pour Into Army Training Camps

By WILLIAM A. RUTLEDGE III
Central Press Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — Appeal after appeal has been made throughout the length and breadth of the land for music-producing instruments and equipment for the armed forces. Music is essential—essential to sustain the morale of troops held back from action, essential to stimulate the fighting qualities of forces ready to go into action, and most essential to combat the recurrent waves of loneliness, homesickness and mental depression which service men must endure.

It is not real action which presents a problem of morale. It is the holding back from action. Men hundreds of miles away from home, nothing to do but keep in trim and go through interminable routine. It is that inaction that is likely to get them down in spirits.

The country is being scoured for pianos, radios, phonographs and musical instruments which can be sent to encampments and bases. It is the old-fashioned wind-up phonograph that is wanted more urgently than the latest electrically-operated one.

Men abroad do not have convenient electrical outlets and in many branches of the service electrically-operated equipment not essential to actual operations is strictly taboo.

No More New Pianos

All piano factories have been making specialty parts for airplanes for some time now. The materials which formerly went into pianos have been placed on the "essential" lists and cannot go into pianos. The skilled workers and cabinet-makers have been placed in specialized war work.

There is no piano industry. Yet a few days ago Army headquarters in Los Angeles asked dealers for bids on 1,500 pianos. In the film capital there was only one dealer who could be of any help. He asked the Army to cut the number to 70 pianos and to give him plenty of time and he would do the best he could.

The dealer had no pianos at the time. He advertised in newspapers an offer of a $25 War Bond for anything that even resembled a piano—not a single restriction or string to the offer. A parade of pianos came from attics, from basements, from garages—most of them shabby antiques.

However, the dealer was elated to get them. With a quickly-organized crew of 20 men the dealer set about to work over them and get them into working condition. They looked like brand new pianos when he delivered them to the Army and the Army was indeed pleasantly excited to get them.

A call was sent out for old phonograph records and in they came, some of them more than 40 years of age. It meant a lot of stimulating and spirited music for thousands of men in uniform.

Radio equipment goes into every plane, ship and tank which is made in the United States. A four-motored bomber, for instance, carries more than $30,000 worth of the finest radio equipment.

So the armed forces must appeal to a generous public for radios. In this area the response was so tremendous that a van and storage company was finally called upon by the Army to pick up the radios offered. A lot of music and news from home will pour through those loud speakers for boys all over the world.

A few months after Pearl Harbor, and with the United States initiated into complete participation in the global war, all instruments in musical firms were frozen solid. These instruments, principally for bands, have not been sufficient and the headquarters of armed forces are on the lookout for more, which can come only from responsive civilians.

It might be pointed out, as a gentle reminder to civilians who might entertain an urge to hoard such equipment, that it will become antiquated and non-usable in their hands. The skilled repair men and tuners are in equally skilled war work. After the war such equipment will be antiquated by the new post-war models which have already been planned for.

All equipment of entertainment value is needed by the armed forces. Pool and billiard tables rate high on the list and can be placed in recreation rooms for service men to great advantage.

Desks, typewriters, filing cabinets are also needed. Uncle Sam isn't asking for charity although he isn't averse to accepting a gift. For office equipment the appraisers of the War Production Board will set a fair value. Do not bicker over a few dollars. Those valuation standards are fairly set. Accept the first offer and be glad that what you cannot utilize during these times can be helpful in the prosecution of the war.

In fact, almost anything and everything you cannot use now probably can be put to use in the war program.

You would be amazed at what can be done by skilled workmen. Age is no bar. If the basic material is there, something can be made of it in all probability.

Sometimes when you make a Long Distance call to a war-busy city, the operator will say: "Please limit your call to 5 minutes—others are waiting." This does not happen all the time. Many calls go through about as usual. But whenever we have asked that calls be kept to 5 minutes, public co-operation has been splendid. Thanks for your help and understanding.

KNOW-HOW AND TAXES

All over the country, in hundreds of war production plants, managers, engineers, designers, mechanics, assemblers, and others are demonstrating the industrial know-how that has so long played a vital part of our industrial growth and progress in both peace and war.

From plant after plant come reports of savings—savings in the use of critical materials, in time required for production, in overall manufacturing costs—savings in design fabrication assembly and in shipping space.

One automotive company alone was able to save the government $169,178,141 on last year's production. This amount is equivalent to giving the government—cost-free—1,000 medium tanks, 200 torpedo boats, 2,000 anti-aircraft cannon and 450 interceptor planes.

In hundreds of other cases exceptional savings in time, money and material have been made through the application of mass production technique and the development of entirely new manufacturing processes or in the application of entirely new principles or products.

For instance, the 45-calibre submachine gun which before the emergency cost the government $225 has been replaced by an equally effective weapon which costs only $21. And in another case the 50-calibre aircraft guns which used to cost $1,000 can now be produced for $400 and in the redesign 52 pounds of steel and 2 pounds of bronze are saved.

These savings mean less expense and should mean a saving to the people in taxes, if the government doesn't use it for some other purpose.

Now if the government itself would cut some unnecessary expenses in accordance with the way private industry is doing the job for the government in producing war material, everybody would feel better except perhaps the bureaucrats.

REDUCING PRODUCTION

In stressing the need for a government policy that "will result in maximum food production," John D. Miller, president emeritus of the National Council of Farm Cooperatives, says "price ceiling experiments tracing back to the Roman Empire have a record of uninterrupted failure as a method of preventing inflation or keeping down the cost of living."

"An effective ceiling on any commodity will in time restrict production. A planned economy spells the doom of our system of free enterprise. Rising commodity prices are not the cause, but the result of inflation."

"Inflation should be attacked on two fronts: First, by adopting policies that will result in the greatest possible food production, thus increasing supplies and, second, by siphoning off buying power through taxation, thus reducing demand."

Mr. Miller described subsidies as higher food prices with the money being paid by the citizens to the government as taxes, and then distributed to the farmers by government. "Farmers resent being placed in a position where they cannot support themselves but must accept

Flashes of Life

Watch Has Lot of Time To Get Around
MEMPHIS—A wrist watch without inscription, lost by a Memphis marine in the sands of Guadalcanal last January, has come home after a circuitous journey of thousands of miles.

The watch, dropped by PFC Leo M. Schneider, Jr., as he leaped ashore, was found in February by a Marine captain who later turned it over to a Red Cross worker in a San Francisco hospital.

The Red Cross worker, Virginia Benham, traced the watch from the manufacturer through the wholesaler distributor and jewelry firm finally to Schneider's parents here.

The watch, still in good shape, is being saved for its Marine owner who has some unfinished business in the Pacific.

Carries His Wallet On Running Board
KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—W. D. Kelley, driving to his office, honked his auto's horn at a downtown intersection.

A boy exclaimed: "Look, there's a wallet on that man's running board." A passerby, Mrs. J. B. Carden, gave a look and dashed to telephone her sister, Mrs. Kelley, who in turn called her husband at his office.

He found the wallet on the running board—money and all.

government handouts. Food prices can be so regulated that farmers will receive a living price and with consumers paying as low a price as is consistent with production cost, transportation, processing and marketing. This was done during World War I and food production rose to the maximum. But now we have price ceilings which have always resulted in decreased food production."

THE FIDDLER'S BILL

Anti-inflation palliatives are doomed to failure unless quickly followed by effective measures to control the cause of inflation. The cause of inflation is directly traceable in a large measure to Federal financing policies. As long as tax favoritism and wage favoritism toward great masses of voters prevail, and as long as those so favored fail to invest a large share of their record wages in war bonds, no power on earth can stop inflation.

Blood Tests in Diagnosis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
IN MAKING a complete examination in order to arrive at a diagnosis of the patient, the examination of the blood is very important.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

portant. The blood goes everywhere in the body; it is a sort of common reservoir for all chemical reactions that occur, as well as reactions against infection and contagious diseases.

Examination of the blood to see what the anatomical condition is also has its importance. The blood is formed in the bone marrow and the cells float for a few weeks or months and are then destroyed in the spleen or liver.

If some sort of infection—a severe influenza or other weakening disease—comes along, there is a depression of the bone marrow, the number of cells formed will diminish and we have a condition of anemia. This is an important indication for treatment in that various foods, vitamins, iron and liver should be given in order to bring the blood up to normal.

Besides the red cells there are also the white cells or phagocytes in the blood, which appear any place where there is inflammation or infected cuts or burns and which do their part in killing of these invaders.

In a case of appendicitis or pneumonia the physician often wants to know whether the patient's defenses are responding properly and there is no better way to tell than to find out how many leucocytes are in the circulating blood. Whereas normally there are about 8,000, in the case of pneumonia or appendicitis there may be 30,000 or 40,000. This condition, known as leucocytosis, is a good indication but it is also a method of measuring the favorable response of the body.

Fortunately the technical methods which determine the number of red cells and white cells are very simple and can be done without any laboratory equipment other than a microscope and a counting chamber.

But these anatomical features of the blood are only the beginning of what we would like to know about it. Within the last 25 years methods of making a chemical examination of the blood have improved so that we can determine very accurately just what chemicals are floating around and in what concentrations. For instance, in the case of diabetes where the starch metabolism is disturbed and the body does not utilize starch and sugar, it accumulates in the blood. This we can measure.

Effect of Bright's Disease
Again, in cases of Bright's disease where the kidney is not functioning normally, the substances which it ordinarily throws off such as urea, creatinine and other nitrogenous substances, accumulate in the blood stream. Normally the nonprotein nitrogen of the blood should not be more than 40; in Bright's disease it may be as high as 60 or 80 and the amount of retention is an indication of the functional capacity of the kidneys.

This can be adjusted and helped by adjusting the diet and is valuable from the standpoint of treatment as well as diagnosis.

In gout there is a disturbance of uric acid metabolism and the uric acid content of the blood can be very accurately measured and the severity of the gouty condition determined by this reading.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. A. M.: Is there any truth in the old adage that drinking water with meals will make a person fat? That is, is the water itself fattening, or does it tend to make the food you eat more digestible? I drink on the average three glasses of water with each meal.

Answer: It is certain that water itself is not fattening. It is also probable that water drunk with meals goes in a kind of sluice along the top of the stomach and does not mix with the food at all and therefore does not make it more digestible. Many people find that water drinking increases appetite, however, so this may be the explanation of those cases in which it seems to increase weight. I do not think that three glasses with a meal is too much.

A great measure of the success of Russia's victories last winter is attributed to these troops who move with the silence of a snowflake. CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

AFTER A MOMENT, as Jean stood there in the dim light of her bedroom, she realized that she was trembling. Was it only two minutes ago she had first entered the door and reached to turn on the light switch? It seemed like hours. Gone now was her weariness—all thoughts of rest. She crossed the room in the gray half light of dawn and drew her feet up under her on the chaise longue. She must get control of herself and plan out her next move!

Since that one glimpse of the bandit outside her door, she felt suddenly alone and unprotected in an unfriendly house—the menace about her the more terrifying because it was revealed only through rumors and tenuous coincidence—in whispered half sentences in darkened halls. Her mind was too stunned to think clearly about the words she had heard. She was vaguely sure, however, that they were, like the limping man's presence here, frighteningly significant.

After a time a dull plan fumbled through her mind. She got up and went to her wardrobe, pulled out her suitcases and packed them with desperate speed, still without turning on a light. She stopped once with a brilliant idea. She would call Steve. But the thought died quickly. She would have to go down to the library to do it. Someone might hear her. No it was better this way.

As she gathered up her toilette articles, she thanked her lucky stars she had moved so often in her short life that she could do it with some degree of efficiency even in her present state of tension and fear. As she worked, she heard the last car leave, and the family and servants move along the halls to their rooms. She held her breath each time footsteps passed her door, weak with this sudden overwhelming terror.

Her packing done, and a note written to Mrs. Parkinson, she sat tingling with nervous dread, beating her suitcases for an hour until she was sure the household was asleep. Then she propped her note on her dressing table, took her luggage and slipped out.

There was no sign of life in the littered confusion of living room and patio as she crossed them. Although her watch told her it was 6 o'clock, for once even Miguel was asleep. Cautiously she opened the great iron gates, but no one heeded their creaking. With a feeling of instant relief she hurried to the garage, backed out the station wagon and drove away from the ranch.

She drove furiously through the early morning mist to the village and stopped before the pink, crumbling-walled adobe hotel, colored by the brave light of the sunrise. "How could I ever think this wasn't beautiful?" she asked herself with humorous relief as she carried her suitcases up the narrow stairs to her small room. The landlady loomed in the archway below her, her round face beaming sleepily above her wildly-flowered kimono.

"So glad you come back," she called loudly enough for the neighbors to hear. "I go up there today and sweep it good."

"Thanks," Jean came down the stairs again and hurried back to the station wagon. The familiar brown ribbon of road that wound toward the factory, flanked by its fields of guayule for mile after steady mile, gave her her first feeling of security. Personal fear and loss faded for the first time behind the importance of the news she was carrying to Steve.

She swung the car up beside the two others in front of the engineers' shack. Smoke was rising from the chimney and morning dew still was on the roof and car tops. As she climbed out of the station wagon the front door of the house opened and Steve appeared, surprise lighting his face.

"Hello, there!" he cried.

Howard and Tanner came up behind him.

"Boy, what luck," shouted Tanner. "Company on the morning I make the pancakes."

"You must enjoy losing friends," quipped Howard.

Jean laughed joyously with them. She felt a surge of new joy in the sun and joking friends after her night of fear. "What! Just eating breakfast," she scoffed, as she entered the room. "Why, it's practically afternoon, isn't it? Or maybe I've lost track."

Howard whistled good-naturedly as he set a place at the table. "The hell of the hell! I saw you last night—couldn't get near you for a dance without a reserved ticket. Bet you never went to bed."

"Bet I didn't, either," said Jean, a grim edge to her laugh. "And I am starved, come to think of it. I want to talk to you, Steve, but—"

Steve grinned. "Yes, I think you ought to eat first, too." His alert glance told her he had caught the note of grimness in her laugh.

Breakfast was a gay, lively meal, with big Tanner, a huge apron tied around his middle, flipping the pancakes and boasting about his mastery of the art of cooking. Steve and Jean agreed he'd make an excellent wife.

Jim Ballard, the serious-minded young engineer from Wisconsin, couldn't keep away from his morning paper even with guests at the table. He propped it in front of the sugar bowl while he sipped his coffee.

"I see where the Baruch committee has recommended an expansion in the synthetic rubber program," he commented.

"Yes. From grain." Steve turned to include Jean in the conversation. "Tires instead of cocktails from now on."

"They're talking about building some whopping plants all out through the grain states."

Jean took another pancake, to Tanner's infinite delight. "We seem to be in a growing business," she murmured. "May I have the butter, Steve?"

He passed it to her absently. "We're in the business that may win or lose this war," he said. His voice was heavy, taut. He turned to Howard. "I got the reports of yesterday. We'll soon know how your formula stands up under government testing."

"I wish you hadn't tried—" Ballard's voice died away as Howard turned angrily toward him.

"It worked, didn't it? You saw it in the test tube?"

"Yes, but—"

Ballard and Howard were locked in an engineering discussion, in which both Steve and Tanner joined for a few heated minutes until Steve glanced at his watch.

"We'd better be going," he said to Jean. "Do you want to powder your nose?"

"Might be a good idea."

Jean went into the small cubicle adjoining the main room which Steve used for a bedroom. She put on some rouge to conceal the pallor caused from her sleepless night, and combed her hair. She noticed as she did so how Steve kept his dresser. Every brush in place. A picture of his mother—an intelligent, handsome woman. She had probably taught him to turn his bed down so neatly in the morning and leave his slippers at such an exact angle beside the chair. Small wonder that Steve had turned out to be an able executive! She went back out into the living room again feeling slightly guilty for her thoughts.

"I'm ready," she smiled.

Quartermaster Has Axis Fashion Show

By MARGARET KERNODLE

WASHINGTON — There's a "restricted" room here that looks like the Army has so many captured shoes it doesn't know what to do. But the fact is the Army has so many captured shoes it does know what to do.

This room is where the Army Quartermaster Corps tests and examines captured enemy equipment—looking for features worth adapting to our own use. Battlefield booty and photographs of enemy equipment are rushed here by plane and by ship for immediate study.

A German wore these high boots when he landed in Libya, but he continued to wear them only on inactive duty. If he went into combat he wore those low ones instead. Why? That's a question only the quartermaster corps could answer—but won't for the present.

Photographs were made of Japanese tree climber equipment in Guadalcanal. The Jap tried tree-climbing irons on with rope of a certain length, reaching round the ankles and holding the spikes. This jibes with other information the expert examiners kept to themselves while they finished designs for tree-climbing shoes for our own men.

It makes a difference whether a tropical boot is all leather or leather bottom topped with canvas. German panzers get the best equipment served out to German service men. It's valuable to know their clothes never are bulky, never clumsy, and that German mountain troops wear pants which button tightly around the ankles.

Sometimes the captured stuff—the high and low Nazi boots, for instance—serves simply to check things Army Service Forces already knows—and reassures ASF it's really doing better than all right by the boys in uniform.

Some day some of the stuff probably will be on public display, but the Army has reasons for not letting the public in to see the captured goods right now. First of all, neither Hitler nor Hirohito knows how much we know. Second, certain unscrupulous manufacturers might try to beat other manufacturers to contracts for improved equipment.

Meanwhile here are some of the things you cannot see right now unless, perhaps, you obtain permission to get a glimpse, as I did to write this piece:

Japanese tropical uniforms which came from the Pacific theater of war, a pair of "Alpini" boots from Italian mountain troops, mountain tents and jungle hammocks, sleeping bags and emergency rations, a German rubber boat with bellows to blow it up, jungle shoes, Finnish skis, quilted suits for the Arctic, portable stoves, poncho tents, military magazines from the Axis civilian pamphlets, confiscated photographs.

The Axis worked years to develop some products America can produce almost faster than the captured items were flown across the world to this country.

The ASF also improves American equipment of the United Nations. Emergency rations improve because of Australian experiments. Chinese and Russian winter uniforms furnish style features for American arctic clothes. A neat nest of cooking utensils from the Dutch East Indies shows efficiency in providing emergency rations, pot hooks, cooking stand and eating tools in one handy kit.

"It's quite simple if you can only think of it," the ASF men often say.

Miss Beulah Lineberger Is Wed to Pfc. Lloyd Thompson in Halls, Tenn.

Rev. C. S. Thompson and Rev. B. R. Winchester Perform Double-ring Ceremony in Baptist Church

In a lovely, informal wedding in Halls, Tennessee, Miss Beulah Lee Lineberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ewel Lineberger, of Halls, became the bride of Pfc. Lloyd Stephen Thompson, son of Rev. and Mrs. C. S. Thompson of Washington C. H., Sunday afternoon, June 13.

Before a banked altar of gladioli and fern the double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. C. S. Thompson and Rev. B. R. Winchester in the Baptist Church. Two seven-branch candleabra burning in tall cathedral candles, were placed on each side of the altar.

At 2:30 o'clock a program of organ music by Mrs. Wymond Hurt with Miss Ann Whitaker of Halls, Tennessee, singing several lovely soprano numbers was enjoyed.

The bridegroom had as his best man Pvt. Stein of Michigan.

Little Peggy Norman led the bridal party to the altar as flower girl. She was dressed in white and carried a bouquet of spring flowers.

Miss Anita White as maid of honor, wore white organdy, with a wreath of flowers, and carried an exquisite corsage of white carnations. The bridesmaids, Miss Wanda Hillard and Miss Helen Pugh wore blue and carried bouquets of white carnations. Harry Wright, Jr., was the ring-bearer and followed the procession to the altar.

The bride was lovely in a gown of gleaming white satin. Fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, long tight sleeves, it was made princess style with a lace-trimmed train. She wore a finger-tip veil trimmed in lace and carried a corsage of white rose buds.

Mrs. Lineberger wore blue and white afternoon dress and used navy accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore navy-green with black and white accessories.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for relatives and close friends of the bride and groom. A wealth of magnolias and honeysuckle, as well as huge baskets of gladioli were attractively arranged in the living and dining rooms and formed a beautiful setting for the affair.

In the dining room the bride's table was a picture of beauty with a beautifully decorated three-tiered wedding and birthday cake, candles and flowers. The wedding day, also being the bride's birthday, candles and greetings to the bride were placed on the cake.

Softball League Here To Open Wednesday

The grand opening of the eight team softball league here will be staged at 7 P. M., Wednesday at Wilson Field. The opener will be played between the teams from the API and the Baptist Church.

There will only be one game played an evening and therefore one team will not meet the same opponents more than once. The games are scheduled to be played on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. If any game is postponed, they will be played off after Tuesday, August 3.

There were a few rules agreed upon as to the running of the games in this league. They are:

1. A team roster must be handed to George Miraben, playground supervisor, on the evening the team plays its first league game. This roster is to consist of not more than eighteen names.
2. There will be no stealing home from third base.
3. Any player who leaves one team must secure a release from the team manager before he is eligible to join another team. This player is suspended from two weeks of play and then must first attempt to join the lowest team in percentage standings, before he can seek reinstatement on the next team in league standing, etc. The purpose of this is to prevent any player to quit one team and join a stronger team.

4. Teams must be prompt for game time because all games will be played before dark.

5. Official softball rules will govern all play with the exceptions listed above.

Baseball Trading Deadline Reached; Several Brewing

By JUDSON BAILEY

(By the Associated Press)

Today is the deadline for making trades in the major leagues without getting waivers.

The Brooklyn Dodgers have been trying to peddle Joe Medwick for several weeks without getting any satisfactory offers, but if Branch Rickey has made up his mind to turn loose the one-time great slugger of the National League, this is the day he might do it.

The club most likely to take him would be the New York Giants. The Giants not only need strength on the field, but they need to convince their fans that the management is trying to get talent.

—Spying— On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP)—Ned Irish is laying plans for a college basketball season at Madison Square Garden next winter, though he admits it probably won't be basketball as usual.

Bucky Harris fined of his Phillies players 50 bucks apiece for missing the bus to an exhibition game at Camp Shanks, N. Y., last week.

Larry Atkins, the Cleveland fight promoter already is planning to move into Detroit Olympia and Chicago stadium as matchmaker after the war.

Football Tradition

The last time West Virginia and Virginia Tech played football in Charleston, W. Va., the game was a fill-in when the mountaineers had broken off with Washington and Lee after Sol Metzger had taken his West Virginia team off the field and forfeited the 1916 game.

The next year in Huntington, W. Va., Ira Errett Rodgers led the mountaineers to their most recent victory over V. P. I. They're slated to meet again in Charleston this October because the war interrupted the W and L series.

If that 30-day harness race meeting at Empire City goes through, trotting horse men would like to have the hamlet-banion raced there to draw the crowds. But Bill Cane is so anxious to preserve the gothic "tradition" for the Hamletonian that he even has considered holding the meeting there without betting.

No-Hitters Harder On Fans Than Pitchers, Says Vandy

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 15.—(AP)

—No-hitters are harder on fans and teammates than on pitchers, says Johnny Vander Meer—who should know. He gained baseball fame by hurling two such games in five days.

Johnny was recalling those two consecutive no-hit, no-run victories today, the fifth anniversary of the second game.

By pitching a no-hitter June 11, 1938, against Boston and on June 15 against Brooklyn at night, Vander Meer, then a 23-year-old Cincinnati freshman, set a major league record. Never before or since has a major league pitcher pitched two no-hitters consecutively, or even in one season.

Baseball immortality, even in the minds of the game's immortals, fades quickly and the husky, blond left-hander had no idea it was five years ago he made the record books.

"It's water over the dam," he grinned.

Was he harassed by doubts or fears as the hitless innings stretched longer and longer?

"No, I wasn't. Personally, I think those games were harder on the fans or the boys on the bench than on me. You see, I figured 'what the heck, if they get a hit, what can I do about it?' And the answer, of course, was 'nothing.'"

In his own second game I remember I didn't use a curve ball until the sixth inning. For the first five I used nothing but fast balls, then the last four I started throwing lots of curves."

Johnny hurt his arm in 1940 and was off form for several months, but he did show a flash of his freshman brilliance in tossing a one-hitter against Philadelphia the next season.

Against Mort Cooper of the Cardinals he opened the Cincinnati home season this year with a two-hit shutout victory, then picked up another two-hitter several days later.

But he decried any intimation he was trying particularly to equal his 1938 record.

"You never know," he described that subtle baseball item called "stuff." "One day you got it, the next day you haven't."

The Milwaukee Brewers, gaining fame as one of the most dangerous hitting clubs in the American Association, have won 12 of their last 15 games—scoring 30 runs in their last two victories—to skip into a tie with Minneapolis for second place.

CHICAGO, June 15.—AP—Trading in wheat quieted down toward the close today as the market firmed. This time it was Pitcher Eddie Hanyzewski, the South Bend, Ind., fireballer, who not only hurled a six-hitter but also collected three hits in five trips, including a two-run homer.

The Brewers' win, plus Kansas City's 6 to 3 victory over Columbus, enabled Milwaukee to soar into a second place tie with the second division while the Redbirds and Toledo became locked for fourth.

Don Hendrickson held off Columbus by sifting eight hits while the Blues went to work for 14 blows off a pair of Redbird hurlers. This batting spree was paced by Jack Saltzgaver with a hit, what can I do about it?" And the answer, of course, was "nothing."

In his own second game I remember I didn't use a curve ball until the sixth inning. For the first five I used nothing but fast balls, then the last four I started throwing lots of curves."

Johnny hurt his arm in 1940 and was off form for several months, but he did show a flash of his freshman brilliance in tossing a one-hitter against Philadelphia the next season.

Against Mort Cooper of the Cardinals he opened the Cincinnati home season this year with a two-hit shutout victory, then picked up another two-hitter several days later.

But he decried any intimation he was trying particularly to equal his 1938 record.

"You never know," he described that subtle baseball item called "stuff." "One day you got it, the next day you haven't."

triple, double and single, and Al Lyons with a double and two singles.

Weather caused postponement last night of two games, Louisville at St. Paul and Indianapolis at Minneapolis.

Cherry Hill and Sunnysiders in the grade school softball loop game Monday between Cherry Hill and Sunnysiders, turned out decidedly for Cherry Hill in a 4 to 5 score. This game leaves Sunnysiders trailing behind in the league, and shows that with the proper number of players, which Cherry Hill didn't have when they played Central they can easily win.

Dove and Johnson were the heavy hitters for the game.

Brunner was the pitcher for Cherry Hill and Lininger tossed for the Sunnysiders.

There are about two more weeks to be played in the grade school league and in that time Rose Avenue and Central must break their tie.

Wednesday's game will be between Sunnysiders and the Central Sluggers.

ROTARY BOARD REVIEWS PAST TO PLAN FUTURE

Carroll Halliday Will Take
Club's Helm July 1;
Rost To Retire

Groundwork for the coming year's program for the Rotary Club was laid at the last meeting of the board of directors for the year, which ends July 1, at the Devins Party Home, South Main Street, Monday evening.

It was the last meeting, too, over which Fred Rost the retiring president will preside. Carroll Halliday, the incoming president, will take over at the end of this month.

As a guide for the future activities of the club, the directors reviewed the achievements of past year. Special note was made of the public forums for which speakers were obtained through the Rotary International headquarters; of the series of discussions of the "four freedoms" by members of the club which, it was said, brought out talent within the club membership; sponsorship of a Boy Scout troop by the club and support given the Scout movement in the county; the "substantial contribution" made by the club toward the broad relief program for Rotarians in war-torn countries and the attendance contest in which the losing group paid the penalty of buying War Bonds in the name of the club.

Whether any of these activities would be continued or revived next year was not definitely decided.

Halliday took up with his board of governors the appointment of committees for next year—considered one of the most important and fundamental functions of the club head. The program for the year probably will be drawn up in fairly complete form at the July assembly when the committees will be given an opportunity to coordinate their plans into a complete pattern.

A. B. Murray, the new director, met with the board. Rost, who automatically becomes a member of the board as the immediate past president, will take the place of W. J. Hilty, who held that place during the year now coming to a close. Other members of the board are Dr. W. H. Limes, Arch Newberry, Billie Wilson, Glenn Woodmansee, Marilyn Riley, Rost and Halliday.

JUSTICE DEWEES RESIGNS AFTER YEARS IN OFFICE

Ill Health Forces Him To Retire, He Explains To City Council

After 16 years as Justice of the Peace in this city, Wesley W. Dewees has submitted his resignation to City Council, effective June 26, and in the meantime he will clean up the affairs of his office before retirement.

Ill health is the reason for his retirement, his health having been slowly declining recently.

His resignation, submitted to the City Council Monday afternoon, reads:
"Owing to continued ill health I am submitting my resignation as Justice of Peace of Washington C. H., effective June 26, 1943. Permit me at this time to thank your police force for their assistance on various occasions and to express to the voters of Washington C. H., and Union Township my appreciation of their support through the past 16 years."

CHANGE OF TIME WITHOUT FLURRY

Switch Sunday Night Is Accepted Generally

Change from slow to fast time was accomplished here Sunday night without a flurry, the courthouse clock being turned forward one hour at midnight by the caretaker of the clock, Heber Roe.

The change in this city was a popular one, and war time, or fast time will be followed in the city and community until September 30, when the change back to slow time for the fall and winter months will take place.

SIX-MONTH-OLD BOY DIES IN HOSPITAL

Funeral services for Gerald Lee Wilson, six-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wilson, who died Monday afternoon at the Children's Hospital in Columbus, will be held at the Klever Funeral Home at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning and interment will be in the Washington Cemetery. Rev. Frank Sollars will conduct the services.

He had been ill for the past three weeks and was taken to the hospital last Friday.

Besides his parents, two brothers, Roger, 4, and Ernest, 3, survive him. He also leaves three grandparents, Mrs. Rose Rouse and Mr. and Mrs. Marion Wilson, all living here.

Friends may call at the Wilson home, 1143 East Paint Street.

MERCURY AGAIN HALTS AT 93

Intense Heat Alleviated by Series of Storms Late

For the second successive day, the temperature soared to 93 degrees, Monday afternoon, causing a great deal of discomfort, but the intense heat was reduced sharply late in the evening by a series of heavy electrical storms which swept various parts of the county.

The mercury finally came to rest at 68 degrees as the low point during the night, and at 8 A. M. Tuesday was back to 75 and mounting steadily. Rainfall here was only .07 of an inch.

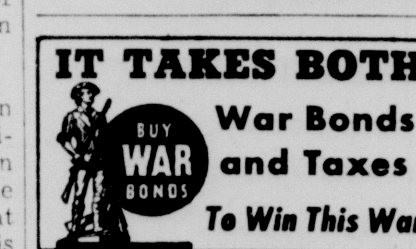

A year ago 62 and 46 were the extremes for the day, the low reading following a short period of heat which had sent the mercury up to 90.

Rains over the county were unusually heavy in some areas, and there was an unusual amount of heavy thunder.

McCoy, Monday. Lieutenant Penrod recently received a diploma in Mechanical Engineering course at Yale University, New Haven, Conn.

Lieutenant Penrod and Mrs. Penrod and son, John Harvey, leave June 19th for Tucson, Arizona.

SEED BUILDING ON MARK FARM BURNS MONDAY

Harold C. Mark Loses Big
Hybrid Seed Corn
Storage Plant

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the hybrid seed corn building and plant of Harold C. Mark, on the Miami Trace Road, a short distance south of the CCC Highway, Monday afternoon, and was prevented from wiping out other buildings by Fire Chief George Hall, City Manager Edwin Ducey and a street crew, equipped with a portable pumper.

Fire Chief Hall declared it was the hottest fire he ever encountered, the metal roof on the structure holding the heat and causing it to radiate so that it forced the fire fighters back time after time.

The building destroyed was 30 by 70 feet, and had a shed in connection, which contained some farm machinery. No seed corn was stored in the structure at the time, but about 300 bushels was stored in an adjacent building, 10 feet distant, and by hard work this building was saved, although the weatherboarding on the structure was badly charred.

The wind was favorable for saving the house.

The regular pumper of the department was not taken to the scene, but the portable pumper, with capacity of 10,000 gallons per hour, was used to good advantage.

The loss, not estimated, is partly covered by insurance.

Mark expects to replace the hybrid seed building, in which the seed is stored and cured, as soon as possible.

By reason of the fact that most of the corn is planted, the building contained no seed corn when the fire struck.

City Manager Ducey had his face, arms and hands badly scorched by the intense heat, and members of the street crew also suffered severely as result of the searing heat.

Fire Chief Hall went to the scene armed with his heavy coat, helmet and other equipment, and was enabled to reach the seat of the fire in short order.
